The bread and books changed places. A mixed-up delivery - or a planned surprise? You tell it.

Follow three ducks, an apple and a cone to the square. Make a story with all three discoveries.

Make one new place. Add two surprises. Give someone a fair clue.

My clue: Can you find... ?

My story: What might happen if... ?

Grown-up answers + pocket notes

A SMALL FIRST VISIT

No cutting. Print pages 1-4 and place morning/afternoon side by side. Read one search; the child points. Start at one place and reveal the rest gradually. The printed labels tell the scenes apart.

T1 / Three ducklings at the police station, bottom middle.

T2 / Long rolling pin in the bakery, middle left.

T4 / The three flowers sit in a wheelbarrow at the building site, middle right.

T6 / The snail at the bus stop, bottom right.

T7 / Hat: town square > bus stop.

T8 / Teddy: clinic > park.

T9 / Fire engine: fire station > park.

T10 / Bread: bakery > library. Books: library > bakery.

T11 / Traffic cone: building site > town square.

T12 / Three ducklings: police station > town square. All three are pictured.

STORY DISCOVERIES

E1 / Morning: both town square. Afternoon: dog at park; hat at bus stop. Their reason for separating is not pictured and is open to invention.

E2 / Bread moves from bakery to library; books move from library to bakery. Either proposed story, or another story fitting those facts, is valid.

E3 / Teddy came from clinic; dog from square; fire engine from fire station. Kite is in the park in both scenes. The gathering's purpose is invented.

E4 / Ducks: police station > square. Apple: park > square. Cone: building site > square. Why they moved is open to invention.

HELP WITHOUT SOLVING

Offer one place or two possible objects if a search stalls. Let the child point, tell or act. A pictured discovery has a pictured answer; who carried things and why is open to invention.

ANOTHER VISIT

Keep scenes unmarked. Stop after a discovery you enjoy. Swap who asks, try the story expeditions or make a new corner of town.
